continuity of generational historical memory concerning national culture and its vital component – the traditional art crafts. The outcomes of the university's educational, research and creative efforts constitute a considerable contribution to the advancement of national historical awareness. By sustaining and augmenting Russia's cultural heritage embodied in traditional art crafts, the university shares many points of convergence with the objectives of the Association "Russian historical society".

Joining the Association will enable dissemination of accurate, reliable and up-to-date information among compatriots about the essence and specificity of regionally historic types of art found nowhere else beyond Russia. The history of traditional art crafts has long been woven into the broader fabric of Russian history, imbuing it with new layers of meaning.

Furthermore, joining the Association alongside eight branches provides a robust pool of staff and organizational resources, empowering the university and the Association to organize large-scale joint initiatives and execute long-term projects geared toward safeguarding national memory and cultural heritage sites.
